We Dedicate

To the students who walk the halls of Wellington High we dedicate this book. Embodied in it are reflections of our classes and parties, our fun and our work of this last year. May the reflection remain sharp and clear against the distortion of time. Because you, the students who walk the halls of Wellington High, have made this last year such a happy one, we dedicate this Megaphone to you, with the hope that you will have as much pleasure in receiving it as we did in preparing it.

We prepare for tomorrow in English.

There's never a dull moment!!

"But that can't be!" says George.

English students this year learned the fundamentals of reading, grammar, composition, and public speaking.

English is required of all students from seventh grade through the eleventh grade. Senior English is taken voluntarily and is considered a college preparatory course.

Two capable men conducted the Junior-Senior High School music groups to an outstanding year.

The Wellington senior high band, directed by Lyle Dilly, made over 20 appearances, and entered the district music festival. The band marched at all the home football games. The high school pep band played for all home basketball games where the majorettes acted as flag bearers.

Russell Dickerson the new music director, conducted the A Cappella and glee clubs in numerous appearances throughout the year. The harmony class learned to conduct vocal music groups and to compose and arrange music.

PRESENT AND FUTURE OF SCIENCE

Mrs. Elizabeth C. Smith

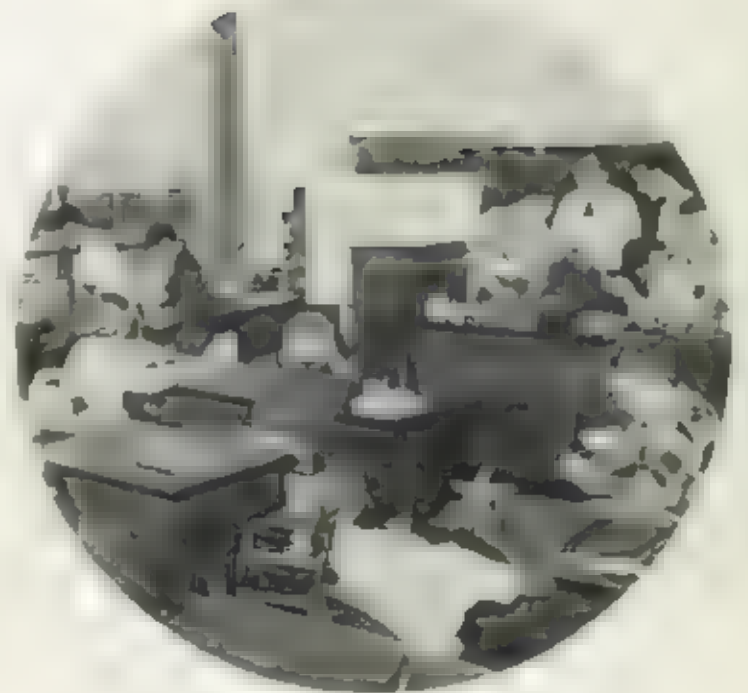

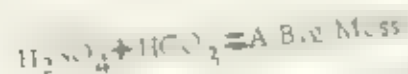

James M. Smith

Students enrolled in any science this year learned the fundamentals of Biology, General Science, Chemistry, and Physics.

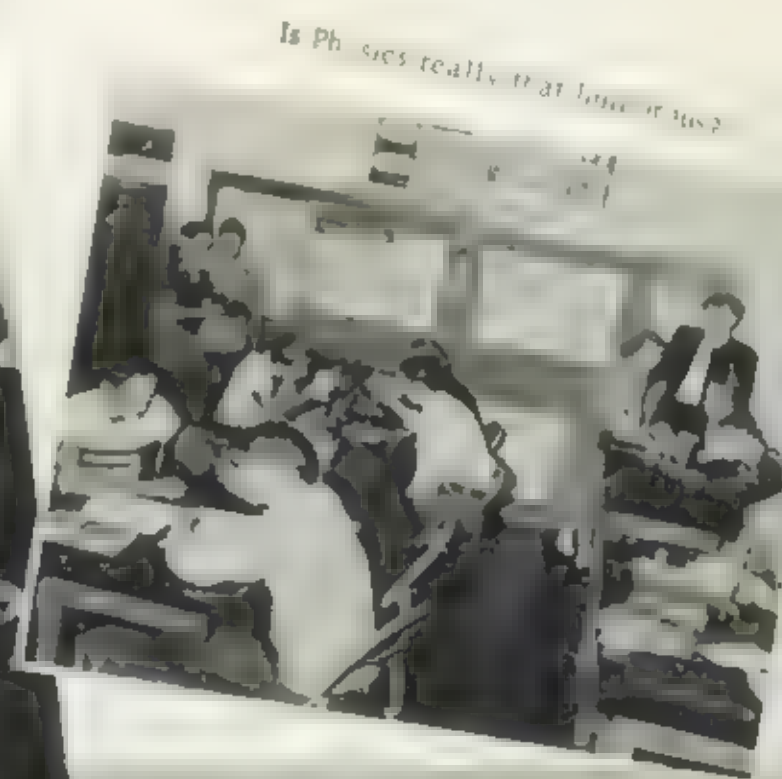

General Science is used as an introduction to all other courses in science.

Biology students cringed through the dissection of worms, fish, and frogs as well as studying the origin, development, structure, and functions of plants and animals

Chemistry is the study of the chemical changes and properties of matter, while Physics concerns the physical properties. Physics is divided into six divisions of study: heat, light, sound, mechanics, electricity, and nuclear physics

And Social Science Our Past

Students in Commerce class, 1925-26

The largest elective department in our school, Commerce, prepares the students for the business world through classes in shorthand, typing, bookkeeping, office practice, and business law. Besides these basic skills such things as vocabulary building, spelling, mathematics, and salesmanship are stressed. However, the Commerce Department is geared to supply the needs of both the future truck farmer, who must keep neat records of his crops and income, and the smoothly efficient secretary to a busy executive. The popularity of this department is evidenced by the fact that three-fifths of the eligible students elected it this year

In Mathematics we learn to solve our problems.

In mathematics and general mathematics the principles of addition, subtraction, multiplication, and division are stressed while in algebra a basis for all higher mathematics is presented.

Plane geometry is started with the intent of learning to observe relations in a figure, to state them in a concise manner, and finally to prove them by formal proof. In solid geometry the study of three dimensional figures is conducted.

Trigonometry is a study of triangles and the six functions of an angle of a triangle.

Careful there, don't burn your fingers!

"Careful there don't step on my wet sweater." "Hey, throw me a spool of thread." "No, I don't want any of your toast--it's burned." Anyone passing the door of the home economics room might hear these comments because they all express some phase of the class work.

In foods one learns to plan balanced meals, how to prepare them, how to set an attractive table, and how to serve them correctly.

Girls in clothing learn how to make their own clothes by using the different seams, seam finishes, and different materials. Want to be a model? The girls model some of their garments in their style show held in May.

Basketball, baseball, softball and tennis highlighted the fall sports for Jr. High gym classes. During winter months the girls played volleyball and basketball, while the boys were having calisthenics and playing basketball in the gym.

In the health classes taught by Coach Paine and Hannah Brown, the students learned the fundamental parts of the body and how they functioned.

The Senior Hi-Y organization had a very successful year. The club was represented at Model Legislature at Topeka by six boys and were also represented at Camp Wood by five boys. Hi-Y was co-sponsor of the Third Annual Kayate & Hi-Y Formal. Two pep assemblies were also highlights of this years club. Many impressive meetings were presented to make this year an even greater success for the Hi-Y.

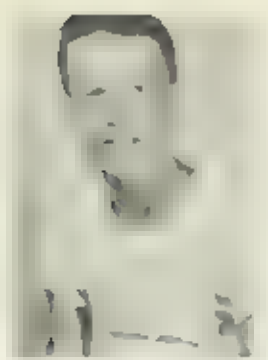

What! Kayettes and Hi-Y

Senior Kayettes received many awards this year. They had 93% of the girls enrolled in senior high school this year. Two sponsors and ten Kayetes went to a conference at El Dorado. The girls organization sponsored the Father Daughter Banquet and Mother Daughter Banquet. At Christmas time as usual the Senior Kayettes sang Christmas Carols in the halls. The Kayette's programs were very enjoyable.

Something new was instituted by the Junior Hi-Y this year-a Christmas card sale in which about 1200 cards were sold. The cards were designed and sketched by Bill Koons, Junior Hi-Y sponsor and art instructor. The five Wellington churches were the subjects of the sketches.

Group worship was held in the spring with the entire group attending church.

The gym nights held throughout the year were a popular project with the boys.

The highlight of the year for the Junior Kayettes was the Mother-Daughter Tea and style show held in May.

For the second consecutive year the members of Junior Kayettes were awarded the 2,000 point award at the district Kayette meeting which was held in El Dorado

Junior Kayettes served the community during the year by sending letters about the TB drive and by making Christmas favors for the hospitals. Sponsoring the Junior high Party and presenting the Thanksgiving assembly were two of the projects of the year.

Three Misses and a Myth

Three Misses and a

Myth

The Junior play, "Three Misses and a Myth," was a hilarious comedy directed by Miss Jolene Woolcott. Mr. Livingston's (Frank Ward) lambrain daughter, Susie (Nancy Arnett) kept the audience in stitches by her unpredictable escapades. Susie and her playmates "arranged" everyone else's business and love affairs. (With the aid of Merglethorpe.)

Wellingtons gridiron Crusaders wrapped up the 1952 season with a 6-2-1 all-game mark and a 4-2-1 league record good for a third place tie in the ever-tough Ark Valley. Wellington's vest pocket size halfback Ernest McComb, rolled up a total of 700 yards in 90 tries for a staggering 7.7 yards per carry. Bob King smashed for 470 yards in 91 carries for an average of 5.4 yards. Jack Conway the 190-pounds signal caller amassed a total of 970 yards gained---either passing or running. Davis and Yearout---pound for pound---were by far the best ends in the Valley. Out-weighted and out-manned in every contest, the battling charges of coach Marvin Vandaveer displayed the keen competitive spirit for which they are known throughout this area.
